

Please let VOOM keep their satellite, they are the only ones who care about HDTV and offer things other providers don't. Plus we need competition or the competition is going to charge more because there's no one to challenge them like cable. DISH NETWORKS has plenty of satellites in the air already and VOOM only has one so letting them have it is like a monopoly and the FCC could face legal trouble also for assisting them in their monopolistic practices. The satellite was sold by Cablevision's Jimmy Dolan against the wishes of VOOM founder Charles Dolan's wishes.
